I was working on a data pipeline in which I could use the Hive Access Using Username and Password via JDBC API to setup a connection to a hive server and perform some tasks. Now I am using an Amazon EMR cluster instead of a regular EC2 instance and I am not able to connect to the EMR cluster using the same syntax. There is no such a pool in EMR to connect. So is there a way to connect to the EMR cluster using Hive Access Using Username and Password via JDBC API? A: You should have no problems connecting to your EMR cluster with a Hive JDBC Driver.

The Apache Hive JDBC driver supports connecting with the following connection properties:

jdbc:hive2://[host]:[port]/[database]

However, since the driver is vendor-dependent and binary, it's not included in the AMI and will be difficult to get running via any AMI-based EMR API method. (See: for the Hive JDBC driver.) You'll need to download the binary from hive.apache.org and install it. The installer only requires the Java 7 runtime.
