* A beginner can use Photoshop to create images from scratch. However, if they want to touch up images they've already created, they'll need to know about several different tools. You can create various tools in the same way as you would in a word processor. Use Photoshop for digital photography: Say goodbye to film. If you shoot digitally, you'll probably want to use Photoshop to enhance your images. You can use Photoshop as a photo editor for all types of images, including negatives, slides, and films. Using Photoshop to improve your existing photos in any way is a great time-saving approach. * It is the most common tool among photographers, and probably its most popular one. * It's arguably the best image editing application. * You probably won't want to switch away from it for photos. * If you think you won't want to use it, you'll end up using it anyway. * If you're serious about learning how to use it, you can find more than enough tutorials. * Some of the most popular sites for teaching beginners Photoshop are and The latter even offers a free program. * It's not always that simple, though. If it is, you'll probably be using a raw conversion to process your photos. * Use Photoshop as a design tool. * It's a good tool to use for web design. * Use it to create presentations, flyers, designs, posters, and other printed materials. You can also use Photoshop in an application-independent way, using the commands that are always available to every layer. You can use Photoshop to create vector graphics: From the very beginning, Photoshop has been known for its ability to create vector images. The best way to describe it is to say that it is the closest thing to a vector image that you can create on any program, and the closest to a pixelated image it can create. Vector images were the only way to go until Photoshop shipped in 2001, so it's no wonder that it's become an almost indispensable tool for artists. * They are always scalable. * Use them to draw graphics in any program. * Use them to create logos, branding, and web graphics. * Use them to create logos, branding, and web graphics. # Which Software Can I Use? If you're just getting started, your first priority is to

The death toll from an earthquake in Italy on Monday jumped to at least 156, as authorities in the northern city of Genoa mourned the victims of the tragedy that shook the country from the Piedmont region through the country's Liguria region. The death toll jumped to at least 156 on Monday, the Italian Red Cross (ARS) confirmed. Genoa was the hardest-hit city, where a 7.0-magnitude quake struck with a depth of 50 kilometers early on Monday morning. Almost half of the city's population of 430,000 was evacuated and 26 people were injured, including a four-year-old child, who needed an operation. The death toll from Monday morning's quake is set to rise, but the final count is expected to be lower than the estimated 316 victims, Italian media reported. Italian prime minister Giuseppe Conte, who visited the city on Monday, said that the vast majority of the injured were evacuated to a hospital in Treviso in Veneto region and that several hospitals in the region are now ready to receive the injured. "The government is ready to mobilize whatever resources are required. Unfortunately, the risk is high of more victims. Searching for survivors is very difficult due to the collapsed buildings," Conte said during his visit to the city. Authorities issued a curfew in Genoa on Monday evening and police also conducted house-by-house searches of residents to see if any victims remain trapped in collapsed buildings. The government of Genoa imposed a state of emergency and mobilized the military, which is at the scene of the tragedy. Another earthquake struck the area of the Piedmont region on Tuesday morning, in the Liguria region, which is close to Genoa, sustaining an estimated magnitude of 4.3, according to the US Geological Survey. This, however, was not felt in Genoa. Pleased to inform that a 3.8 magnitude earthquake occurred in the Bay Area at 1:26 p.m. today in the L.A. County area. It's magnitude was 4.3. The epicenter was about 30 miles North West of Tracy. The USGS said it was not close to any major faults. They will provide more info after the overnight hunt. — Matthew Draghi, EFIC (@matt_draghi) October 23, 2019 Earlier on Monday, the US Geological Survey (USGS)
