The objectives of this study were: to determine if it is realistic or not to expect a 5-year survival rate of 60 to 80% for patients with non-small-cell bronchial cancer (NSLCBC); to compare the prognosis of various groups of NSLCBC at a single center; to determine the factors that influence survival. We analyzed 223 consecutive patients with NSLCBC. The patients were divided into groups of disease stage and pathological classification in order to compare the prognosis. Survival was analyzed by the log-rank test. The expected survival rates at 5 years and the observed survival rates were 65.9 and 54.4%, respectively. The factors predictive of survival were: (a) lung resection with curative intent ($p=0.001$); (b) performance status (PS) $> \text{ or } = 1$ ($p=0.01$); (c) the histologic type ($p=0.01$); (d) the extent of the lesion ($p=0.01$).
