The wallflowers bringing down the horse [Full Album Zip] I had an urge, so I did what most men do. I put all the coffee I had in the bean pot and flipped the stove on high. Then I ran. Why? Because when you're thirsty, you go back to the bottle. Why? Because there's nothing else there. I guess I'm a goner. Qatar's Bin Hamad Bin Abdullah Al Khalifa has publicly thanked the United States for the blockade of the gas-rich country, but as the standoff drags on, he's finding the economic pain is being felt at home. In a rare display of agreement between the divided nations, the Qatari Royal Court released a statement on Tuesday saying the Gulf state "expresses its appreciation to the United States for its humanitarian role in supporting Qatar through the blockade." "Such measures were strictly necessary to prevent harm to the interests of the region and to contribute to resolving the crisis," the statement said, according to Qatar's Al-Jazeera
