29115 2. No PdfDose-dependent angiogenic effect of thyroid stimulating hormone in the developing chick CAM model. Hypothyroidism has been shown to cause hindbrain malformations in humans and animal models.

Among other mechanisms, this may be explained by a decrease in thyroid-stimulating hormone (TSH) caused by the hypothyroid state. The aim of this study was to determine the time- and dose-dependent effects of TSH on the sprouting of endomucous endothelial cells in the developing chicken chorioallantoic membrane (CAM). Egg shells were cracked, and the eggs were incubated for 3 d. The chicks were then taken out, and blood was collected from the vena cava. Diluted TSH (from a stock solution of 0.1%, 1%, 10%, and 100 IU/mL) was then administered. The blood vessels in each chorioallantoic membrane were counted and compared with the control group (vehicle alone). There was a significant effect of increasing TSH concentrations ($P = 0.037$) in a dose-dependent manner (100 IU/mL, 2.4 ± 0.1 ; 10 IU/mL, 2.6 ± 0.2 ; 1 IU/mL, 1.6 ± 0.2 ; 0.1 IU/mL, 0.7 ± 0.2). The vasculogenesis of the chick chorioallantoic membrane was also observed. More blood vessel sprouts were observed in the experimental groups, with a significantly higher number in the 100 IU/mL group compared with the controls ($P = 0.049$). This study demonstrates a dose-dependent and time-dependent effect of TSH on the angiogenic activity of the chick CAM.

Ambient air temperature and temporal variations in fine particulate pollution in Beijing: An assessment with long-term monitoring data.

The aim of this study was to describe the short-term relationships among air pollutants

(PM_{2.5}, PM₁₀, gaseous pollutants, NO₂, NO_x, SO₂, and O₃), meteorological factors, and ambient air temperature. The relationship between NO₂, NO_x, O₃, ambient temperature, and their short-term variations were investigated. The database which consists of long-term PM₁₀ and PM_{2.5} concentrations (1993-2012), daily meteorological data (1993-2012) and daily air pollutants data (2003-2012) were used in this study
