Subchondral bone loss is one of the morphological features of osteoarthritis. The aim of this study was to examine the effects of dexamethasone on subchondral bone changes in a rat model of osteoarthritis. The right knee of each animal was injected with 100 µL of 1% kaolin solution under general anesthesia, and sham surgery was performed on the left knee. The animals were divided into 5 groups: (i) sham surgery, (ii) dexamethasone, (iii) kaolin, (iv) dexamethasone plus kaolin, and (v) vehicle. The animals were euthanized 4 weeks after the experiment. The subchondral bone loss, cartilage degeneration, and osteophyte formation were evaluated. The synovial cell count was significantly lower in the dexamethasone group than in the control and kaolin groups. The 648931e174

Lynn -----Original Message----- From: Oliver, Michael Sent: Monday, August 13, 2001 9:17 AM To: Blair, Kit; Fossum, Drew Cc: Kilmer III, Robert; Lowry, Phil; Winters, Rick; Reed, James; Webb, Jay; Bouillion, James L.; McConnell, Mark; January, Steve Subject: Revised press release This version is what we are going to send out to the press today. We have a draft "enlarge" version if the word "take" is substituted for "accept" in the third sentence of the second paragraph. I just have two minor comments on your changes. In section III, page 1, the last sentence says "... on July 19, 2001,". The word "enlarge" is a verb and the correct spelling is "enlarged". Also, when you insert the word "enlarge" in the third sentence of the second paragraph it should be emphasized and so the word should be capitalized. >Q: When to create a new dictionary or not? I have a programming language called "Leger". It has a first level of instructions which makes sense and another "advanced" level. I have a file with a lot of instructions. I read this file and now I have to do the "first level" instructions (But only some from this first level are the most important to me). What is the most proper way to do this? Currently I'm saving every instruction in an object called Instruction public class Instruction { public string Name { get; set; } public int Id { get; set; } public int Priority { get; set; } public string Comment { get; set; } } Then I'm saving them into a Dictionary and at the end, I'm filtering the dictionary to only show the more important instructions, which is done with a foreach.
