The AAPL shares opened lower by about 0.7% to around $146.50, then traded sideways for several minutes before closing the session lower by 0.6% at around $146.79 per share. That sent the shares to their lowest level since September 14, 2018. The S&P 500 was little changed at the close in New York while the Nasdaq dipped almost 0.1%. "The multiple-week S&P 500 rally has eased off and major indices are now correcting lower. The drop in crude prices has spilled over into the energy sector and to a lesser extent, Gold. We saw a similar negative spillover in the Q2 earnings season with the S&P and Nasdaq 100 reversing two days after both reported earnings," said JJ Kinahan, chief strategist at TD Ameritrade. Brent crude, the global benchmark, fell more than 3% to around $69.50 a barrel on Thursday on an output cutoff by Nigeria's Shell. U.S. crude fell 1.6% to around $70.30 a barrel, having lost more than 3% since mid-July, when U.S. crude recovered after a three-day slump. There have been developed new optical disks used as an external record medium of a computer. These optical disks have a larger capacity and a higher performance than conventional optical disks. Conventional photodetector devices cannot receive light pulses with a wavelength shorter than 488 nm. This limitation prevents the conventional photodetector devices from receiving light pulses from a new optical disk. ## What's New in the Photoshop 2021 (Version 22.3.1)?

Q: Can I install Xamarin.Community.iOS from an official.pkg created using Windows? I have a Xamarin.Community.iOS project that I created using Xcode as shown here: Now I want to deploy the project to a real physical device. The Windows account I have is not a Team/Enterprise one, but I have admin rights on my home PC. I have taken a look at this documentation: it says to use a pkg file like this: sudo installer -pkg "/path/to/xamarin-ios-sdk-8.3.1.pkg" -target / The problem is I can't find such a pkg file for Xamarin.Community.iOS. Do I need to take a license key or something? Or do I need to send the pkg file to someone and they install it on their home PC? A: If the documentation says to use this procedure: sudo installer -pkg "/path/to/xamarin-ios-sdk-8.3.1.pkg" -target / then it's expecting you to be executing the installer from an OS X box. If you are executing the installer on your Windows PC, you will probably need to extract the Package from the downloaded.pkg archive, and then execute the PackageInstaller on the extracted package. However, if you are trying to deploy an iOS application to a physical iOS device, then you probably will need a Team License. Q: Convert hex string to hex array and vice versa Given a string containing a hex literal, return a hex array for encoding it, or vice versa. Examples: '01' => 0x31 '0123456789abc' => 0x0123456789abc '0123456789abc' => 0x0123456789abc ██████████◆
