And of course you can see some other cool stuff like a recursive object or a threaded set in action. It's my first time to see anyone in Youtube explaining these things without a cut to a static gif of a running code sample, so I think it's also my first time to see video explaining JavaScript in this way. Anyway, there's more info at the bottom of the page if you want to learn more.Q: App Engine: How to use PagedResultList? The App Engine documentation says that PagedResultList is to be used when you're loading huge amounts of results. But what's the use-case for "huge" or "huge amounts"? Using MYSQL as the backend, I put the following raw query on the form: select id, time_elapsed, time_started, message_body from message_log where time_elapsed > "2012-09-01 02:00:00" and time_started > "2012-09-01 02:00:00" and (message_type = 'alert' or message_type ='status' or message_type = 'message' or message_type ='request') and message_id in (1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52,

I was asked this question a lot at work, and I enjoy being able to lend a helping hand so that someone else could have new gloves. The first thing I'm always doing is trying to find another pair of gloves. We sell fishing gloves at the store, and when I'm in a pinch, I'll go to the Lost Coast of Coos Bay to pick up some pretty cool gloves from a guy that used to be the manager of a steak house there. If you're in the Willamette Valley, I highly recommend a visit to the Pacific Crest Fruit Growers Market in Ridgefield. Although I have the best luck at the Lost Coast, I have bought a pair of fishing gloves at the Pacific Crest Market, but I have found them to be the best price anywhere. If you get a pair of gloves at the PC market,
