Q: What does "catomization" mean? Does anybody know what "catomization" is? I always get the same three answer: The victim of a coup d'état The shamed person who is consumed by shame A train crash If it means number 2, what does it mean? What is the situation which is referred to by number 2? If it means number 3, what does it mean? A: The term, coming from psychology, refers to the psychological process of dissolving a person's self so that all parts of the person are only temporary wrappings and separate from the real personality and the true self. It is a dissolution of personality and is characterized by the merging of all parts of a person, with loss of self-concept, loss of self-identity, separation from the exterior self, and erosive loss of memory. The person is dead to all parts and unable to hold any self-identity as a whole person. The root word of catomization is "catomize" from which the expression catomization, as a noun, is derived. The action is to cut through someone or something. It's a common, if rarely used, technique in military, political, corporate, and other forms of manipulation. "Coup" is an older word for it, but is not used in legal usage. Ventriculomegaly and dysmorphic features in adult patients with XLI. X-linked lymphoproliferative syndrome type I (XLI) is a rare primary immunodeficiency characterized by enlarged lymph nodes, hypogammaglobulinemia and increased risk of malignancy, mainly non-Hodgkin lymphoma. Adult onset XLI has been rarely described and only a few cases were successfully treated with immunoglobulin replacement, suggesting that the management of adult XLI is difficult. We present 3 patients with XLI over 40 years of age. In all cases we observed hydrocephalus, suggesting that even after the onset of adulthood, XLI may persist with complications including meningitis and hydrocephalus. Chronic inflammatory syndrome was also observed in 2 cases. Interestingly, all 3 patients presented dysmorphic features. We discuss the possible pathogenetic mechanisms leading to these unusual complications and try to define the role of mutation analysis in the diagnostic approach.[Detection of M2 tetraspan
