Version 1803 (Build 17134) â€" Released May. Threedimensional cell culture model of esophageal carcinoma. In the present study, we constructed a three-dimensional (3-D) cell culture model of esophageal carcinoma by using tumor-derived CAFs as inducers. As possible factors that mediate tumor-stromal interactions. CD44s is the most frequently analyzed one. CAFs were treated with peptide aptamer 2 (P2), which is a peptide that specifically binds to CD44s, or scrambled control peptide (CS). These cells were mixed with esophageal carcinoma cells (Eca) and cultured in collagen gels in vitro. The combinations treated with CD44-specific P2 decreased in cell number compared with CS and Eca cultured alone in both monolayer and 3-D culture. Next, we investigated the effect of the addition of conditioned medium (CM) from CAFs treated with P2 or CS on proliferation of Eca cells using the CAF/Eca cell co-culture system. The results clearly showed that CM from P2 treated CAFs decreased cell number more than that from CS-treated CAFs. Taken together, the results indicated that the addition of CM from P2 treated CAFs was more effective in suppressing the growth of Eca cells than CM from CS treated CAFs. To examine the effect of P2 on tumors in vivo, nude mice were implanted with Eca cells in the dorsal flanks and were then treated with the 1cdb36666d
