FIFA 22 uses a mix of real-time and previously created animations to bring life to the players. Who are the big movers? This year, the Mo in motion technology and gameplay will mean a number of returning faces and legend status for newbies and established players. Here are the next generation of superstar players worth keeping an eye on. The first five superstar players all come from outside of Europe and will have a big impact in how the game handles the new Dynamic Transfers feature. Touted as the most significant change to transfers in the game's history, Dynamic Transfers will be at the core of creating and developing newer and more exciting rosters. Five players, who are all new to the game, will shape the new move methodology and transfer focus. All five players are transferred from the sports world, but not all of them from outside of Europe. Sascha Burgstaller, Dortmund Sascha Burgstaller (BUR) was born on May 23, 1988 in Birsfelden, Switzerland, and began his football career in the youth academy of FC Basel as a 13-year-old. He joined the professional squad in 2006 and made his professional debut a year later in a 3-0 away loss against FC Zurich. Burgstaller's career started in relatively modest Bundesliga clubs. In his first three seasons at 1. FC Kaiserslautern, he played as a striker or winger, but the team never managed to reach the UEFA Europa League. Burgstaller then joined Bundesliga 2 club Fortuna Düsseldorf, where he impressed and scored 14 goals in 34 matches, and was transferred to Borussia Dortmund in 2010. Burgstaller quickly became an important player for Borussia Dortmund, helping the club win the DFB-Pokal, the Champions League and the DFL-Supercup in his first year. The Swiss player is a regular for Borussia Dortmund, scoring a total of 19 goals and helping his club to two DFB-Pokal titles (2011/12 and 2012/13), one DFB-Pokal Final (2012/13) and to the Europa League Final in 2013. Dominik Sutter, Werder Bremen Dominik Sutter (SUT) was born on October 2, 1988 in Biel,

What's new:

- Team Legends: new global team rosters showcasing the biggest names from all your favourite game modes and soccer leagues across the world, including Lionel Messi and Real Madrid.
- Rise up from the lower divisions: enjoy the new game mode that features the popular Championship mode: start as a player, start as a manager, finish with your own squad all the way up to the Premier League.
- Innovative approach to contracts: your Player Career mode will no longer only be based on one, static contract. This season, you'll be able to choose from various contract types, which all react differently to game progress, keeping you on your toes. How you play will make the difference in which path you choose at the end of the contract. New contract features include: Contract age: your contract age will be clearly displayed, depending on how far you have progressed and how many minutes you have played. Base salary: The base salary will be your set weekly salary, as in real life. Rights: Your player will be able to buy a percentage of the players' turnover* to the player. Salary inclusions: Requirements you may have to meet, like competitions or foreign player bans, will be determined by your club's General Manager.
- Live Now, Live Forever: this year's version of the existing Team of the Week feature delivers an experience like never before. Start off against a historic legend — like your favourite club and country's current captain or coach. Or if you prefer, take on a legendary team that will return for a pre-season game of its very own with your own, fully created Club. With a brand-new set of stadiums at the helm, you'll feel like your own All-Star player.
- Realistic goals: a much wider variety of realistic goals will give you everything you need to make those spectacular shots count. New shooting mechanics and consistent reactions to every shot provide more variety.
- Innovative sprinting: Sprinting will feel more responsive in FIFA 22. Players will be able to sprint past the last defender more easily and with more control.
- Navigation and Ball Control: new tools will help you feel
