Why the Competition? Adobe Photoshop used to be the only game in town, but there are a number of similar programs that perform similar functions and are quite popular with beginners and professionals alike. Photoshop vs. Photoshop Express? There's even a free photo app similar to Photoshop called Photoshop Express that allows users to edit their photos from a mobile device. Photoshop, however, doesn't use a mobile app. If you have to edit photos on a mobile device, you can use the Express app or download the desktop version, but both of these have their shortcomings. What is Photoshop? Most people will tell you that Photoshop is the name of a single program that does nothing else but manipulate images. That is true as much as saying that a Toaster is a food toaster. Instead, Photoshop is a collection of tools that are used for editing photos and other raster image files (that's any image whose cells consist of dots, like web graphics, scanned photos, and images made from other raster imaging sources such as grayscale graphics programs). At its most basic level, Photoshop is a program designed to let you manipulate raster images. Adobe Photoshop Alternatives Adobe's Photoshop does quite a bit more than just edit pictures, and its share of competition comes in a variety of styles. GIMP GIMP stands for GNU Image Manipulation Program. It is an image manipulation program that was developed by a company called GNU and is based on the GNU project. GIMP (pronounced "jimp") is an open-source application. It is released free of charge and can be downloaded, used, and modified at no cost. It has been called "Linux Gimp" because it is often used as a replacement for the standard image editing software in Linux, and it is also included in most other distributions of Linux and is often installed by default. GIMP does what Photoshop does, but it does it with a lot of fine-grained control. The interface is not as intuitive as Photoshop, but it does allow users to add or change effects directly on an image. Additionally, GIMP has some unique features, such as a special plugin system that lets you create something called a "bundled library," which makes it easier to add any GIMP plug-in to the default list of plug-ins. The effect of diet on obesity and endocrine function of old rats. Weanling male rats were fed the following three diets for 6 months: the control (AIN-93G) diet, an AIN-93G diet with added 5% by weight sucrose and an AIN-93G diet with added 10% protein. We measured body weight, carcass lipids, hormone levels, white blood cell count (WBC) and food and water intake. The body weight gain in the sucrose and protein fed groups was significantly lower than in the controls at 3 and 6 months but the sucrose group weight gain was significantly higher than the protein group at 6 months. Carcass lipids were significantly higher in the sucrose fed group at 3 and 6 months. A reduced food and water intake was also observed in the sucrose fed group. Food intake, serum triiodothyronine, cholesterol, alkaline phosphatase and corticosterone levels were increased in the protein fed group. Basal and vasopressin-induced water intake, serum progesterone and vasopressin levels were increased, and epinephrine and aldosterone levels were reduced in the sucrose fed group compared to the controls. A reduction of mineralocorticoid receptor binding in hippocampus and cerebral cortex was observed in the sucrose fed group compared to controls. The results indicate that sucrose and protein feeding caused distinct changes in body weight and hormone levels of old rats.A. Couple Pedals in Park, Fights Over Dog PARKERSBURG, W.Va. - A couple whose argument escalated to the point they were tossing punches at each other and fighting over a dog apparently left the brawl covered in dog bites and the other, a victim of a drug overdose, hospitalized, according to a report. The series of fights began around 5 a.m. Wednesday in the parking lot of Panorama Motel, about 20 miles east of Parkersburg. Stephanie Williams, 26, and her boyfriend, Spencer Stuthers, 28, were arguing over a dog in a pickup truck when the other couple and their teenage son got out of the vehicle. Witnesses told police that the male couple then chased the couple and their son up a hill in the motel parking lot. Stephanie Williams was assaulted and taken to Wheeling Hospital, according to court documents, but the family's son, Joshua Stuthers, escaped unharmed. Stephanie Williams told police the male couple then left the scene and she then followed them. She said they got back in the truck and accused her of stealing the dog and hitting her in the face. She also told police the male couple was throwing items at her. She told police the male couple got out of the truck and began punching her and her boyfriend, then they fled the scene in the couple's vehicle and left her. Williams, who had no insurance and "chipped away" at her boyfriend's skin, told police she went to the hospital to have her injuries checked out. She told officers there was blood on her stomach and on her pants, but denied she had been bitten by a dog, according to court documents. She told an officer she had been bitten by her boyfriend, she had hurt her right hand and she hit her head on a truck. She also told police she thought the male couple and their son had been drinking alcohol and smoked marijuana. Spencer Stuthers, a resident of Mount Carmel, was charged with first-degree assault by strangulation, second-degree assault by throwing a dangerous object, third-degree assault by reckless conduct and third-degree assault by causing injury. He was arraigned on Thursday and is being held at the Berkeley County jail. During an interview with the officers, Stuthers told police he was trying to change the radio
