You can easily adjust its speed, slow the animation down or increase the bar's size or display the bar on your desktop. Imagine that you have gone to work or school in a place with poor wifi connection, or even in a computer lab. You want to try to load a website or start up some software, but your connection is slow or unreachable. ProgressBars can help you in such cases as it lets you switch from a full-screen display to a simple dot indicating that your connection is progressing in a pace that you can't measure. You can even opt to have its progress bar accompanied by a basic interface that lets you easily navigate through it. Moreover, it lets you easily control your desktop's wallpaper so that you can display a customized progress bar along with a cool background image of your choice. Don't let the ease of use and the awesome interface fool you though, as the program has a lot of cool features that you will surely love. How To Use ProgressBars? After downloading ProgressBars, you need to install it on your computer. The installation process is simple, as it requires you to accept a license agreement and specify the path where the application will be saved. Once you are done, you can launch the application by clicking on its "Start" button. The first thing you need to do is selecting the setup location. You can do this by clicking the "Settings" button and then "Screen saver". You need to tick on the "Set as desktop" checkbox and then click "Next" on the next dialog. The next thing you need to do is choose if you want your progress bar screensaver to be an icon or to be displayed on your desktop as a solid bar. You can also choose if you want the progress bar to be accompanied by a simple text or if you want more advanced text fragments to accompany it. Next, you can choose if you want your progress bar to be displayed in full-screen
