Photoshop CS5 Features * Photoshop has many enhancements. CS5 is the first major release of Photoshop with a new look and feel. The interface has been completely redesigned and is much simpler. The digital-art tools are now on the Edit menu. * Workflow improvements. Workflows have been introduced that allow you to integrate multiple photos, drawing, or paint strokes into a single, integrated layer. This is a very powerful tool for working with images from multiple sources and for creating large, layered images. * Tone and Curves adjustments. Numerous presets are provided for skin tones. Tone Curve is completely new and much easier to use. The names of the Tone Curve presets have been changed to describe their use. In particular, the Vibrance and Saturation presets have been rearranged and renamed in Photoshop.

Q: Excel VBA Multi-cell Input Box 1st non-empty cell is automatically filled I have a multi-cell Input Box that doesn't allow non-numerical characters, and I want the first non-empty cell to be automatically selected, is that possible? I know I can use: `ActiveCell.Value = InputBox("Insert Page Number", "", 1, True)` `ActiveCell.Activate` But since the first empty cell is highlighted, when you click on the Input Box it will always open in the first cell. A: You can use the `ListIndex` property of the `ActiveCell`, which returns the selected item in the input list if there is one, or -1 if no item is selected: `Dim input As String input = InputBox("Insert Page Number", "", 1, False)` `ActiveCell.Formula = ""` `If Len(Trim(input)) > 0 Then ActiveCell.Offset(0, 1).Value = input Else ActiveCell.Formula = "" End If` `ActiveCell.Select` `If Not ActiveCell.ListIndex = -1 Then ActiveCell.Activate` A: This will select the first cell in which the value is non-empty: `Option Explicit Private Sub myCode() Dim input As String input = InputBox("Insert Page Number", "", 1, False)` `ActiveCell.Formula = ""` `ActiveCell.Value = input` `ActiveCell.Select` `If Len(Trim(input)) > 0 Then ActiveCell.Offset(0, 1).Value = input Else ActiveCell.Formula = "" End If End Sub` The reason for this, is because you have the `ActiveCell.Activate` method, so that the box pops up in a cell already selected, which, in the real world, means that the user will not see the first value.
