
Fifa 22 For PC

RAPIDFIRE is a comprehensive set of artificial intelligence routines that increase visual and interactive speed, as well as creating more authentic on-ball behaviour. RAPIDFIRE forces the player to use parts of their brain that are typically used to identify a visual feature, to predict on-ball behaviour and to quickly react when a fast on-ball action is required. Also, the AI system will rotate players to compensate for any force applied by the player, allowing for more realistic outcomes on the pitch. RAPIDFIRE looks for the player's individual characteristics, and then uses this to determine which components they should be using for any particular situation. REFLECTION is also a new AI feature. The system uses the player's head movements to gauge opponent movements. When an opponent receives the ball, the player will experience moments of anticipation and suspense as he or she anticipates the opponent's movement. Finally, there's the new Generation PLAYER engine: The detailed character models throughout the game feature a new unified approach to animation. This new animation system has been used to simulate the movements of every player in the game. Every player's movements and interactions with their teammates were modelled from scratch in the new animation system, and then the results are applied across both individual player animations and within the team.
