Olympic stadiums The Olympic Games have been held in no fewer than nine cities across the globe, and every city has had its own stadium. It can be said that the first Olympics were held in St. Louis, Missouri, USA in 1904. Four years later in 1908, Berlin was selected to host the Games. But the stadium built for the Berlin Games proved too expensive, and the Games were moved to London, England in 1912. Three years later in 1916, the stadium in Athens, Greece was selected to host the Games, and this stadium is where the first three Olympiads were held. It too was built for less than the $15 million cost, and it too was far too small. It was ultimately decided to move the Games to Paris, France, in 1924. In order to accommodate the French team and fans, a new stadium was constructed in time for the first modern Olympic Games held in Paris. That stadium proved to be far too small, so for the 1928 Games, the stadium was enlarged and re-designated as the Estadio Olímpico. The stadium has been used and renovated for a variety of purposes since the late 1920s. The stadium has been used for the French, Soviet, Japanese, and United States teams. In 1999, the Olympic Stadium was completely renovated. The renovation was a complete makeover, featuring a completely new stadium, facilities, and stands to accommodate the 2000 Games. The stadium remained the home of the Olympic stadium for the 2004 Games. It is also home to the French Football Club Olympique Marseille. The stadium will be the home of the UEFA Euro 2024 and the 2026 FIFA World Cup, as well as the 2024 Summer Olympics. Olympic stadium The new Olympic Stadium is designed by ODP Architect. The former stadium was also designed by ODP Architect, and was built in 1999. It has a capacity of 80,300, and is located in the eastern part of the city of Paris. The stadium cost $1.5 billion to build, making it the most expensive stadium ever constructed. It replaced the Pantheon as the Paris National Sports stadium, and the city was planning to use it for other events. Built for the 2000 Games, the stadium was dubbed a work of art. It featured a look that was reminiscent of a gothic cathedral. The façade was made of white stone, and was a design that resembled a cathedral. When it was built, the Olympic
