A simple explanation of bone marrow failure: myelopoiesis is carried out by a very diverse pool of cells which are committed to maturation and self-renewal early in life. Recent studies have prompted us to reconsider some basic concepts in the myeloid cell field. A comparison of maturation of the spleen and bone marrow seems to show that the spleen, where G-CSF-primed pluripotent stem cells are present, also produces "adult" B-lymphocytes without further proliferation. The bone marrow, on the other hand, seems to be maintained by a pool of cells that are not as old as the spleen cells, and their numbers are increased several fold by the administration of G-CSF. These studies suggest that it is inappropriate to regard mature peripheral blood cells as completely homogeneous. Nevertheless, the overall function of the cells can be defined in terms of the common roles they perform in the immune system. A Spanish tourist has been stabbed to death and another man seriously injured while on a train from Krakow to Warsaw. The 40-year-old woman became embroiled in an argument at the Polish-owned Eurostar Rail services station on Friday morning. She was attacked by a 38-year-old man wearing a black top in the waiting area, reports say. The victim was taken to a hospital in Krakow but was pronounced dead on arrival. The other man was taken to Warsaw with stab wounds to the face. He is said to be in a stable condition. Greater
